New Y Students Arrive For Orientation Week

SPECTRE OF FROSH WEEK—Behind these three bewildered freshmen, representative of the thousands of new students who flooded the campus today, rises the campus to lessen the number of last sheep.

For those who may tend to become sick for the hearts so far away (homesick), activities have been scheduled for every evening. Monday night, the administrative officers and faculty will be introduced and a program of student and faculty talent will be presented. Tuesday evening, LeRoy Porter, studentbody president, and other student leaders will be introduced, and temporary freshmen class leaders will be elected. Wednesday, student can try one of the favorite Y activities—dancing. Thursday, after an afternoon of sports for the men and a fashion show for the women, new talent will be shown in the evening assembly. Friday will be a studentbody dance. This dance will be open to all students, new and old.

With the close of orientation week, new members of the Y studentbody should have learned the habits of health, organization, and the spending of money, which helps make for a successful college career.

Record BYU Enrollment Begins Friday Morning at Fieldhouse

An estimated 3400 freshmen and new students in addition to returning students are expected to boost registration totals Friday and Saturday to the highest mark in the BYU's history, according to Dr. Wesley P. Lloyd, dean of students.

The sign-up will be conducted entirely in the fieldhouse, and because of installation of IBM machines and revised procedures, registration time is expected to be cut to less than 30 minutes.

Listings Available For Off-Campus Housing Facilities

Brigham Young University's largest freshman class arrived on campus today to begin orientation—many of them still without housing facilities.

In order to accommodate the expected 3400 new and transfer students by the end of this week, the student housing bureau, located in the east end of the book store, is open for the purpose of housing students and reports listings are still "adequate and satisfactory."

During the summer Provo and surrounding communities have been waging a full-scale campaign to obtain enough off-campus accommodations to house the great influx of students.

At the present time all dormitories are closed and none of the new ones under construction will be available to student for the fall quarter. However, two will be completed by Nov. 14, two by Dec. 15, two by Dec. 24, and two by Jan. 3, according to a report issued by Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson. These eight houses will provide housing for 500 students. The balance of the units will be completed by next summer.

U.S. Navy Band To Perform At Fieldhouse

Brigham Young University students will have an opportunity to hear the United States Navy Band when it makes an appearance in the fieldhouse, Tuesday, September 30.

Stopping in Provo on tour of the western states, the band will give a matinee and evening performance, with proceeds from both going to the fieldhouse fund.

Last year's performance of the band was in the Joseph Smith auditorium, where seating arrangements proved inadequate for the overflow of music lovers, said Dr. J. C. Moffitt, general chairman. This year, he announced, the fieldhouse has been secured to handle the large crowd that is expected to be in attendance.

Adult admission prices at 3 in the afternoon will be 30 cents, with reserved seat tickets for the evening performance at 8 p.m. $1.20 and general admission $1.

A strict registration schedule has been set up, which must be adhered to during the two-day sign-up, Dean Lloyd indicated. Those reporting out of the proper alphabetical sequence will have to wait until the end of the regular registration period.

Big Sisters...

Upperclass Women of AWS To Help Little Fresh Sisters

by Lu Markham, Associate Editor

One of the oldest and nicest of BYU traditions is the Associated Women Students' sponsorship of "Big Sister."

This year under the direction of Kathy Latimer, president of AWS, the program is giving help and encouragement to nearly 1300 freshmen women. Co-chairmen of the project are LaRue Oakley and Carolyn Janus.

The "big sisters" have the responsibility of making the new freshmen welcome and feeling at home. The upperclass women will brief their little sisters on Y traditions and answer all questions. Help for bewildered freshmen will be the order of the day.

As early as last spring quarter 150 upperclass women were recruited as "big sisters." The "big sisters" have been corresponding with their "little sisters" this summer and are planning to escort them to the AWS Fashion Show on Thursday.

Monday is the date for the "big and little sister" parties. All freshmen women and their big sisters should attend.

Any lost little sisters who cannot find their "big sisters" should come to the AWS booth in the lobby of the Joseph Smith building.

Campus Branches Resume Meetings

Church activity on campus is provided by the Wymount Branch for married students and the Campus Branch for all other students on campus.

Campus Branch meets in the Joseph Smith auditorium and the Wymount Branch holds Sunday School in the banquet hall and sacrament meeting in the Wymount chapel.

Both branches are part of the East Provo Stake and are completely supervised by students. A full schedule of meetings is held each week.

Scott Speakman presides over the Campus Branch, with Albert Whangna as first counselor and Newell Richardson as second counselor. Harvey Thacker is Wymount Branch president.

Student Employment Under New Head

Students desiring part-time on campus or off campus employment should contact the BYU employment placement bureau as soon as possible, according to B. Keith Duffin, recently-appointed employment director.

The bureau will do everything possible to make more jobs available to Brigham Young University students," he stated. The placement bureau was recently changed from a part-time to a full-time student service with expanded staff and premises of new facilities. It is still located in the Press building, but will move into a more spacious office next quarter.

The biggest problem, according to Director Duffin, is to educate the townspeople of Provo to see BYU students. He explained that placement would be slow but that the bureau would try to work out the work shortage in as fair a manner as possible.

James R. Clark, former director of the employment bureau, has resumed a full teaching load in the university.

The employment Placement Bureau plans eventually to become a clearing house for not only student part-time work but also for graduate and alumni placement.

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSE

Coming of Age

It hasn't been in our day, but there was a time, we understand, that college life was mostly a rah-rah business, embellished with coonskin coats, the black bottom, hip flasks, ponies and the rest.

We're not looking back on such days with nostalgia, just noting that things have changed considerably.

Pointing up some of the great changes that have taken place on many American campuses is the Honor system, which is intended to utilize high personal standards of honor and integrity in academic and other university activities.

We are proud that this university was founded on the principle of individual honor, and that honor forms an integral part of the Y in 1952.

In the functioning of the Honor system at BYU, complete confidence is placed upon all students with the expectation that they will be responsive. And it is probably unnecessary to point out that adherence to Latter-day Saint standards is fundamental to the workings of such a system here.

Freshmen are welcomed at Brigham Young University, because they contribute enthusiasm, sportsmanship and earnestness. They are also expected to lend their strength to sustain the force known as the Spirit of the Y—a force made stronger because BYU students have honored the university and respected its purposes.

With all the changes from the past, college is as real as it ever was. There may be one difference: It's taken a big step forward and is growing up.

You and the UNIVERSE

Hi, Fresh! Welcome to the greatest University in the world (you think so, we do too).

As your studentbody newspaper, we'd like to bid any freshman that can punch a typewriter or scratch a pen to earn his or her press card via the operations of the UNIVERSE staff. A special dedication orientation meeting will be held for all prospective journalists Tuesday, Sept. 30, at 4 o'clock in 24 N (ye old UNIVERSE office).

Those of you that are too selfish to dedicate your talents to the edification of the BYU studentbody, are invited to dash off an occasional letter to the editor. It's your newspaper—and the best guy to represent your thinking is you.

Around the Campus

Ah, sweet mystery of freshman life... You woke up this morning a BYU frosh. As a freshman, you'll enjoy learning and living the traditions of the Y, even during frosh week.

Freshman week means a trek to the big Y for the gent—a trek that the frosh nor their arches will soon forget, but long remember. Everything that goes up, comes down—including the stampeding herd of freshman vigilantes that seek out the slacking elements of their group, and give them free swimming lessons in the local creek.

Symbolic of Cougar athletic prowess are the repeated possession of the Old Wagon Wheel, and the pealing of the Y Bell.

Friendliness is an established tradition here, and an essential part of the Spirit of the Y. No one has an excuse for feeling lonely on this campus. All ya gotta do is say "Hello" and you've-got friends.

Tops 'o the traditions is the great BYU honor code. Students, on their own, are to keep LDS standards here—nuff said.

Apostles Talk At Campus Leaders Meet

Following their two-day Leadership Conference held at the Brigham MIA home, nearly 80 student leaders Friday night returned to the BYU campus with the feeling that the coming year was going to be a great one.

Held annually prior to fall quarter registration, the leaders' meet is intended to direct and stimulate thinking and plans for the school year. ASDU President LeRoy Porter conducted all sessions of the meet, which included talks from President Stephen L. Richards of the first presidency and Elder Ezra Taft Benson.

During the conference the group was divided into four committees to study and make recommendations on such campus problems as the housing shortage, means of maintaining BYU traditions, social units, improving inter-school relations, and inter-organization Council reforms.

Dr. Royden C. Brathwaite, student coordinator, and members of the Executive Council were responsible for committee meetings of the conference.

First Faculty Meet Completed On BYU Campus

Freshmen weren't alone as they attended orientation meetings at the BYU this fall—members of the faculty were also briefed at a two-day faculty workshop Friday and Saturday.

The program, believed to be the first of its kind ever held at the university, was called by President Ernest L. Wilkinson for the purpose of advising the old and new faculty members on policies and procedures characteristic of the Y.

Expanded services and programs and changes in registration made necessary by the rapid growth of the University were also discussed.

The 9 a.m. session Friday, under the direction of Dr. Wilkinson, explained promotion policy, church relationships, student assemblies, work loads, employment policies, leaves, budget and organization.

Veteran Cougars Win Over Navy Skyraiders

The 1952 Cougars, displaying steadiness, power and strength on both offense and defense, began the football season with a 14-7 win over the US Navy Skyraiders from San Diego.

The Skyraiders were the first to tally, when early in the first quarter they drove from their own 43 yard line to score on five running plays. BYU was behind 7-0, and Cougar fans were startled to see the Navy eleven score so easily, but the Cats were right back, when Karl Bills smothered a Raider fumble on the 20 yard line to set the stage for the Cougars first touchdown of the year. On the fifth play the Kittens were mowing as Satterfield passed to Bills for 6 points and Jae Ballif kicked to tie it up.

Navy Gains
The Cougars were never headed after this, but the second quarter saw Y rooters exercise their faith. After a pass interception near the mid-field stripe, the Skyraiders began to roll towards the goal until they were on the Cougar 9 yard line and goal to go. This time they needed more than 4 downs. The Cat line braced and held on the 2 yard line and took possession of the ball with 60 seconds remaining in the first half.

The second half was Cougar half. In the third period, Reed Stotworthy and Dewey Brundage each recovered a Navy fumble to give the BYU two chances to score, but each time paydirt was too far.

Quarter Troubles
The third quarter was different. Starting from the Y 48, Satterfield passed to Brundage for 16 yards and followed with another pass, which Brundage caught on the four and made the scoreboard read, BYU 13, Skyraiders 7. Ballif kicked the extra point to finish the scoring for the night.

The Cougars are off to a good year and win or lose, the names of Satterfield, Brundage, Bills, and Ballif will be familiar ones to Y rooters.
